Unwrapped: Love

Luke 2:1-20

Video

I like to hang lights at Christmas. I don't like to overdo it, but I think nice, clean, uniform, simple lights are wonderful. I'm not much of a fan of those who look like they vomited 250,000 lights all over their yard. I tell you that because several years ago I was the youth and campus pastor at College Church at Northwest Nazarene University in Nampa, Idaho. The house that we lived in had a backyard to come up to the street behind us, so that the front of the house behind us faced the back of our house; there was no house in between us. So I carefully hung up my lines of straight lights and thought it looked great – until the first night. That night, the neighbor across our back fence turned on his Christmas lights. We were sitting at the kitchen table for dinner, and I had my back to that house, and I think I felt it before I saw it: I could feel the heat as our dining room was emblazoned with light! I turned around and was nearly blinded – brighter than the noonday sun! It was so bright I couldn't even tell if my Christmas lights were on. I had to put on sunglasses and make one of those peephole things that you use to look at solar eclipses. I could swear I heard planes crashing because it blinded the pilots from 30,000 feet up.

Maybe I'm exaggerating a little (Maybe a lot!) But I'm telling you the truth: there was not six square inches of the entire exterior of this guy's house that didn't have a light on it. He would painstakingly place lights with his ruler. I thought this guy was really going overboard and I was really annoyed – until I talked to him and got his story. He was an older man, and it turns out that his wife loved Christmas more than any other time of year. But she suffered from macular degeneration. The only way he could do Christmas lights so that she could still see them was to put up that many lights, that close together, in that large of quantity. It was a labor of love for this man, all simply to allow his wife to see Christmas lights.

Today we are talking about how God brought the light – Jesus – into our world so that we could see him. It was entirely a labor of love, and he did it for you and I – we who are in the spiritual macular degeneration of our blinded-by-sinness, and he brought the light so that we could see his love for us.

Today we are talking about love. We are in our series called “Unwrapped,” attempting to unwrap the real gifts of Christmas, by examining the big four traditional advent themes, one for each Sunday: Hope, Peace, Joy, and Love. These are the real gifts that we are given at Christmas. These are more than pleasant thoughts or ethereal words; these are real, tangible gifts that God has given us and that we can give others at Christmas. We are talking about the real gift of love – the gift that is the reason for all of it—that we have a God who loves us very much. We don't have a God who waits for us to screw up so he can rush in and punish us, or make us pay, or get His revenge on us. We have a God who patiently waits for you and me to accept His gift of love for us—a gift of His love wrapped in the skin of His Son, Jesus Christ. In the story of Jesus' birth we find many things that point to God's love. First, we see God's love in...

1. The Precinct

...where Jesus was born. You would think that if this baby was the king of the Jews he would be born in the capital city of the Jews—Jerusalem. But that wasn't the case. In fact, he was born in a little tiny town:

Bethlehem

This wasn't even a one-light town. But Bethlehem struck a blow for all the little towns because the King of Kings was born there. This is what the story says:

“In those days Caesar Augustus issued a decree that a census should be taken of the entire Roman world. (This was the first census that took place while Quirinius was governor of Syria.) And everyone went to their own town to register.

So Joseph also went up from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to Bethlehem the town of David, because he belonged to the house and line of David. He went there to register with Mary, who was pledged to be married to him and was expecting a child. While they were there, the time came for the baby to be born, and she gave birth to her firstborn, a son. She wrapped him in cloths and placed him in a manger, because there was no guest room available for them.” (Luke 2:1-7, niv)

It was God's intention all along for His Son, the King of Kings, to be born in the small town of Bethlehem. Seven hundred years earlier God promised it when he said through the prophet Micah:

“But you, Bethlehem Ephrathah, though you are small among the clans of Judah, out of you will come for me one who will be ruler over Israel, whose origins are from of old, from ancient times.” (Micah 5:2 niv)

Bethlehem was about 5 miles south of Jerusalem. It was so small it wasn't even a suburb of Jerusalem—it was more of a curb of a suburb. But here's the great news: God identified Himself with all of us common people by being born in a small town place.

Make note that Bethlehem means, “House of Bread” or “the home of bread.” What's interesting about that is that Jesus is called the Bread of Life (John 6:35)! So this little bread-town is forever known as the birthplace of the Bread of Life. Not bad for a one-camel town.

God still works this way today. In many unassuming ways, often through unassuming people, God is at work to carry out His plans in this world. Don't think you are too small or insignificant for God to love you, to work in you, and to work through you.

Next, we see God's love in...

2. The Place

...where Jesus was born. Bethlehem was such a small town that it couldn't handle the influx of people that had come by order of the census; therefore every inn and every guest bed was full. So instead of being born in a birthing center or at a nice hospital, or even a spare room in someone's home, Jesus was born in...

a Barn

He was born homeless. The Jews thought their coming king, their anticipated Messiah, was one who would return Israel to the days of glory, pageantry and wealth. So naturally they thought he'd be born in a palace. To them, the very idea that the King, their Savior, would enter this world in the stench of a cattle barn and spend his early hours sleeping in a feeding trough was scandalous. In their mind it was an insult to all that Yahweh was. But God doesn't work by human expectations. He works by His own terms, and the manger was, and is, an important part of His great plan to redeem mankind. You see, the manger set the tone for all that Jesus would be in this world. Yes He would come as a King, but not one set above His people—He was set among his people. He would live in society as we live. He would face the same struggles, the same troubles, the same temptations, the same desires and the same circumstances as most average, ordinary people do. If he had been born in a palace, the poor would feel left out. But He came for all of us, from the lowest to the greatest. He was born in the stench of animal dung, laid in the saliva-streaked fodder box of ox and cattle.

His life would begin in an ordinary way, and would remain so until the day He took His last breath. He would get down into the muck and mire of human existence and labor alongside his people. He would keep company with tax collectors, prostitutes, common laborers, illegal immigrants, and segregated half-breeds because He did not consider Himself too good for them. The manger set the tone for this, and we should be thankful because those whom Jesus was born among and kept company with – they are us. That's why the Bible tells us in James 2:5:

"God has chosen the poor of the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom."

Now, we have been told for centuries that the manger was simply a feed-trough; a piece of wood or stone designed to contain an animal's food. There is no doubt that the first bed the baby Jesus rested in was just that, but the entomology of the original word for "manger" suggests far more than just something designed to hold cattle fodder.

In Hebrew, the mother tongue of Old Testament Scripture, the root-word for "manger" means "to feed." So when the story was told in the first century, they would not only recognize the humble physical significance of the manger but the spiritual significance as well; He is the bread of life—God has fed us and is feeding us through the life of His one and only Son.

Finally, we see the Love of God in...

3. The Person

All of God's limitless power and love was compressed into the form of one little infant boy;

a *Baby

When that first cry was heard from the stable of Bethlehem, when into the care of Mary and Joseph came a wrinkled, vernix and blood covered baby, the entire universe reached a turning point from which it would never be the same again. For the first time, the God and Creator of all universes, who before had only been heard and spoken of by humans, who could only be beheld in burning bushes and pillars of cloud and fire, that God could now be seen and touched by humans. But that also meant this God could be spat upon by humans, laughed at by humans, and tortured and killed by humans. The Creator took on the skin of his own creation. All that He was as God now occupied human flesh as man . . . approachable, available, vulnerable. In all our religion, we can never become God, but in Christ God could become us.

On that night in the stable Mary and Joseph were filled with love for this little infant, as any new parents would be. But they could hardly imagine how much this little baby boy loved them! His love for them would reveal itself most dramatically when He was a grown man and was cruelly nailed to a cross for their sin. The infant lying in the manger would, in 3 decades make God's love crystal clear to them and to all of us!

John, one of Jesus' followers and close friends would later write this:

This is how God showed his love among us: He sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. This is love: not that we loved God, but that he loved us and sent his Son as an atoning sacrifice for our sins. (1 John 4:9-10)

The baby born in the barn in Bethlehem gives us an amazing truth: God initiated the relationship with us!

That is the exact opposite of what religion teaches. Religion tells me that I must improve myself until I have earned the love of God. I must chant enough times, do enough good deeds, obey enough rules, and perform enough rituals ... on and on. But in Christianity God came to us. He knew we could never do enough to get to him, so he came to us. We know that God loves us right now just as we are, and not the way we think we should be. You cannot persuade God to love you more because His love is absolute. Nothing you can do will make him love you more than he already does, and no sin you commit will make him love you less. Although God hates sin, His love for us sinners is so absolute that He sent his one and only Son to die for us while we were yet sinners. The Bible tells us that God is love (1John 4:16). This means that love is the very essence of God. It's not just that God feels love or does loving things (although He certainly does). It is that the very nature of God is love. Love does not exist apart from God. If you could vaporize God and cause Him to cease to exist then all love would disappear with Him; love would cease to exist.

The apostle Paul prayed that his readers would begin to get their arms around God's love:

“I pray that you, being rooted and established in love, may have power, together with all the saints, to grasp how wide and long and high and deep is the love of Christ, and to know this love that surpasses knowledge—that you may be filled to the measure of all the fullness of God.” (Ephesians 3:17-19, niv)

It cost God the Father dearly to dispatch Jesus to earth. John has told us that Jesus died as an atoning sacrifice for our sins. That means that Jesus satisfied the requirements of the Law that we deserve to be punished for our sins. When God's Son was nailed to the cross, our sins were legally transferred to Jesus so that He became culpable for everything you and I have ever done wrong. At that terrible moment God the Father and God the Son were severed from one another for the only moment in all of eternity.

And God committed this sacrificial act of love despite the fact that we didn't deserve it nor did we even want it! The Bible says:

“You see, at just the right time, when we were still powerless, Christ died for the ungodly. Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good man someone might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us.” (Romans 5:6-8, niv)

Christ died for us long before we ever did anything to deserve it! Actually, we will never be able to deserve it! Christ died for us simply because He loves us.

He did more than die for us. The Bible says that God sent His Son so that we might live forever! God sent his one and only Son into the world that we might live through him. Jesus rose from the dead and offers not only to forgive our sins; He also offers us abundant and eternal life. Jesus Himself said:

“For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him.” (John 3:16-17, niv)

We can live real life here and forever in heaven if we believe in Jesus. To believe in Jesus means to believe that He is God; that He died in your place, and to put your faith in Him rather than in yourself or in any religion. Here’s one way to understand this: up until the moment you believe in Jesus, you are the god of your own life. Believing in Jesus means that you resign as “god” of your life and ask Jesus to take the throne of your life – to become your God.

In an amazing act of Love, God sent his one and only Son to a little nowhere precinct called Bethlehem to be born in the place of a filthy barn in the person of a baby. He did that to fully identify with the very least of us, to be one of us. He gave up His throne in heaven. He took on flesh—not just for a brief 33 years but for all of eternity. He will always have flesh from now on. Because He loves you.

4. The Present

The amazing thing about this gift of love is that it really isn’t worth anything until it is given away. Love turned inward is narcissistic egoism. Love by its very definition is fully love when it is shared. You have been loved by God. If you have accepted Christ, you have accepted love. You have been transformed by love. Your life is now defined by love. Love is the present that God gives to the world, and he gives it through Christ in you:

in a Being

You are to take Christ in you, and be the unwrapped gift of love to the world around you; to your next-door neighbors. Are you loving your neighbors? We’ve asked you this before, but do you know the color of your neighbors’ living room walls? Do they know the color of yours? Reach out. Build friendships. Love them where they are. Help them if you can. Serve them as you are able. The Message Bible says it this way:

“This mystery has been kept in the dark for a long time, but now it’s out in the open. God wanted everyone, not just Jews, to know this rich and glorious secret inside and out, regardless of their background, regardless of their religious standing. The mystery in a nutshell is just this: Christ is in you, so therefore you can look forward to sharing in God’s glory. It’s that simple. That is the substance of our Message. We preach Christ...” (Colossians 1:27-28, tmt)

Or, as your Bible might say:

“It is Christ in you, the hope of glory.” (Colossians 1:27)

Christ in you. You, in your very being, is the present of love that God desires to give to the world. At Christmas and all the year around, you and I get to love others – to be the unwrapped gift of God’s love to those around us.
